

Hiking, Camping and Shooting's Shooting Checklist

(as of 15 January 2025)

In many ways Shooting is much more personal than Hiking and Camping. People have very specific preferences about the type, caliber and brand of firearms they like to shoot. Consequently, there are two types of shooting gear: 1) the common general areas (e.g. safety items, targets, cleaning supplies, storage, etc.) and 2) the specific firearms that we prefer to shoot (.22 caliber, 9mm, 5.56mm, .223 caliber, 7.62mm, .410 bore and 12 gauge). Because of this split much of the information about shooting gear is applicable to everyone. But some specific gear only applies to people that shoot certain types/calibers/brands of firearms.

When shooting - don't try to take everything to the range. Take only what you really need for the firearms you plan on shooting that day.

Here's the type of gear that we use and think you need for Shooting:
